Interview tips

If you have been invited to an interview, congratulations! Here are some useful tips to help you prepare.

Throughout the interview we will be assessing your strengths. We want to establish what you enjoy doing and what you are good at so we can identify how you may perform in the role. This makes the interview process a much more enjoyable one!

The key to a successful job interview is in the preparation:

1.

Review

The first thing you should do is look over your application form. If you've been invited to an interview it's because we were impressed with your application.

Research

Extend your research about Mott MacDonald and specifically the opportunity you are interviewing for, the interviewers will expect you to know about the company, and why you want to work for us. The most up-to-date information can be found on our website.

3.

Qualifications

It may sound simple, but know your qualification(s). Interviewers will be interested in topics you've covered and projects you've worked on during your studies. Also research the professional institutions that would be relevant

4.

Future

If you're looking to pursue a career with Mott MacDonald then you should also have an understanding of what's happening in the industry and how this could affect your future.

5.

Be your authentic self

We understand that candidates may use various tools, including AI, to enhance their applications. Whilst we embrace the changes technology brings, we value the importance of authenticity. We are interested in the unique skills and experience that you as an individual can bring. What truly sets you apart is your authentic self, and we will ask questions during your interview based on the information in your application.

Showing your strengths

What is a strength?

A strength is something that you do well and enjoy doing.

When using a strength, people feel authentic and energised which can help them deliver a successful performance. If you would like to learn more about what strengths look like in action, you can watch people talk about their strengths here.

Why assess strengths?

By identifying your strengths we can focus on your potential rather than on your previous work experience or current skills. We'll be able to get an idea of whether you'll enjoy working for us and be successful in your chosen role. It is also an opportunity for you to reflect on what you are good at.

Strengthen yourself

By understanding what motivates you and why, you will be happier, more confident, and able to achieve your goals easier.

Strengthen your work

By doing more of what you love, you will be more engaged, perform better, and be more productive.

Strengthen your relationships

When you work on the right things with people and have the right conversations, relationships and interactions improve.

Preparing for the interview:

Before the assessment day, think about your own strengths. To do this, use the questions below to think about what you are good at and enjoy doing:

- What do your friends and family know you for?
- What activities would you plan in a perfect day?
- What do you truly enjoy doing?
- What are you like at your best?
- What achievements are you most proud of and how did you achieve them?
- What activities do you not enjoy – and why do you think that is?
- Are there any recurring themes?

If you are attending a virtual interview, please ensure that your camera and microphone is enabled and that you are in a quiet area away from distractions, and where you will not be interrupted. It's always good idea to test your technology ahead of the interview.

Finally, be positive and good luck – we look forward to meeting you!

The strength-based interview

Don't overprepare.

While you may want to reflect on your previous experiences ahead of the interview and learn a little bit about us, there's no need to come with prepared responses. We want to get to know the real, authentic you.

Include personal experiences.

The examples you use don't have to be work-based. You can also tell us about relevant situations from your personal life experiences.

Be genuine.

Don't try to anticipate what's being assessed or respond in a way that you think we want you to. This could actually have a negative effect on how you perform in a strength-based interview.

Be natural.

When responding to questions, answer based on what feels most natural to you. The questions will be tapping into your strengths and there's not an obvious 'right' thing to say.

Be honest.

Being honest in your responses will help you reflect on whether Mott MacDonald is the right place for you.

to building a better future for
